- (c) ♠ K7 K
- (d) ♠ A73 3

The 7 would represent the more modern approach, ie, second highest from a poor suit

4. Your left-hand opponent opened the bidding 1♥, your partner overcalled with 1♠ and your right-hand opponent bid 4♥.

Which card will you lead from each of the following spade holdings?

- (a) ♠ K73 3 (small promises an honour)

5. Following the auction, 1NT : 3NT. Taking dummy’s holding into account which card should you play in each of the following cases? In each case declarer plays a low card from dummy.

- | Lead | Dummy | You | |

| (b) ♠ 3 | ♠ Q75 | ♠ A104 | ♠10 – when you hold a good good intermediate card like the ten, keep the Ace over the Queen. |
| (c) ♠ 3 | ♠ Q105 | ♠ A42 | ♠A – here you have no good intermediate card. |

In the following cases declarer plays the ♠J from dummy. Which card do you play?

- | | | | |

| (d) ♠ 8 | ♠ QJ5 | ♠ K432 | a small ♠, preferably the 4 to give count. It is futile to cover with the King – you know declarer has |

You have one heart, four diamond and two club tricks, so you need three trump tricks. The best chance to get three trump tricks is to play Ace first, then a small card and put in the 10 if the next opponent plays low. This play wins when QJxx are on your right.

♣ A54

The way to play the club suit for three tricks is, King first, then Ace followed by small towards the Jack. When opponents are 3-3 you automatically score 3 tricks; when the Queen is on your right you also get 3 tricks. By playing this way you also get 3 tricks when Qx is on your right.
